ABOUT THIS OLD HOUSE

A truly rare opportunity to own and restore one of Georgia's architectural and historical treasures. The Foster-Thomason-Miller House in Madison is an excellent example of the American Aesthetic Movement with elements of Queen Anne, Italianate, and Gothic Revival styles. Built in 1883 and completely restored in 1986, it received the 1986 Georgia Trust State Preservation Award. A treasure trove of detail, the interior elements include extensive and original wood carvings, 8 spectacular mantels, cabinetry, and numerous motifs & symbols of the Aesthetic Movement. Damaged by fire in 2001, the main building suffered primarily smoke and water damage and will require significant restoration work.
