

Junior Conservancy

Engaging Morgan County's youth in protecting special places for future generations

Are you interested in protecting Morgan County's environment, learning about its local history, or preserving its agricultural heritage?

Through education, civic engagement, community service, and social events, the Junior Conservancy offers high school students who reside in Morgan County the opportunity to become actively involved in protecting the County's special natural, agricultural, and historic resources. With guidance from Madison-Morgan Conservancy staff and trustees, Junior Conservancy Board Members will create and execute their own conservation-related programming throughout the school year.

The Madison-Morgan Conservancy is seeking applications from rising 9th-11th grade high school students in Morgan County to participate in the Junior Conservancy for the 2020-2021 school year. A good candidate will:

- Have an interest in the environment, history, and/or agriculture,
- Be in good academic standing,
- Have the drive to actively participate in Junior Conservancy meetings, events, and activities,
- Commit to seven meetings and three service events over the course of the school year (dates will be determined ahead of time), and
- Be curious about the place they live and interested in making it better through creative problem solving.

Past Junior Conservancy experiences have included:

- Kayaking at Hard Labor Creek State Park
- Going on a ramble in Morgan County to learn about environmental, historic, and agricultural sites
- Visiting the Athens landfill and recycling center
- Participating in Madison's Arbor Day proclamation celebration
- Touring the historic Nolan Crossroads
- Developing audio-visuals about historic sites in Morgan County

Required Attachments to include with this application:

- Bio (Less than 1000 characters, including spaces)
- Headshot
- Completed and Signed Photo Release Form
- Letter of Recommendation from Teacher or Community Member (Please use attached form)

Complete application, include the required attachments, and submit by March 20, 2020 to:
